• Insert the syringe needle into the bottle and inject the veterinary must prescribe vetsulin® for your pet, and it with U-40 syringes only.

How to give vetsulin® to your pet

• All medicines that you are giving or plan to give your pet,

Tell your veterinarian about:

• Cushing's Syndrome (Hyperadrenocorticism)
• Overactive thyroid (Hyperthyroidism)
• Inflamed pancreas (Pancreatitis)
• Digestive upset (vomiting and/or diarrhea)
• Side effects when receiving other insulin products

• Muscle twitching • Death

Signs of hypoglycemia may occur suddenly and

• Diseases of the adrenal, pituitary, or thyroid gland, or
• Change in the body's need for insulin
• Infection or illness
• Giving too much insulin

therapy is hypoglycemia (low blood sugar). Hypoglycemia

Preparing the Dose:

• Carefully remove the cap from the needle.
• Draw air into the syringe to equal the vetsulin® dose.
• If you see large particles floating in the suspension after required, the product should be gently mixed to maintain
surface of the suspension formed during shaking should
• Shake the vial thoroughly until a homogeneous,
• The importance of ovariohysterectomy (spaying), if your

• Dispose of the syringe in an appropriate manner (sharps/

Giving the injection:

• Using your free hand, pinch up a fold of skin, insert the

• The injection site should be alternated between your

• Pull the needle out being careful to not inject yourself.

• The needle should not be used to inject into a

Using the syringes

• If you do not use the complete contents of the syringe in

What do I do if I miss my pet's insulin dose?

What do I do if I give my pets more than the

What do I do if I give my pets less than the

How do I store vetsulin®?

vetsulin® Injectable Insulin (porcine insulin zinc suspension)

• Carefully remove the cap from the needle.
• Draw air into the syringe to equal the vetsulin® dose.
• If you see large particles floating in the suspension after
required, the product should be gently mixed to maintain
surface of the suspension formed during shaking should
• Shake the vial thoroughly until a homogeneous,
• The importance of ovariohysterectomy (spaying), if your

• Dispose of the syringe in an appropriate manner (sharps/

Giving the injection:

• Using your free hand, pinch up a fold of skin, insert the

• The injection site should be alternated between your

• Pull the needle out being careful to not inject yourself.

• The needle should not be used to inject into a

Using the syringes

• If you do not use the complete contents of the syringe in

What do I do if I miss my pet's insulin dose?

What do I do if I give my pets more than the

What do I do if I give my pets less than the

How do I store vetsulin®?

vetsulin® Injectable Insulin (porcine insulin zinc suspension)

• Carefully remove the cap from the needle.
• Draw air into the syringe to equal the vetsulin® dose.
• If you see large particles floating in the suspension after
required, the product should be gently mixed to maintain
surface of the suspension formed during shaking should
• Shake the vial thoroughly until a homogeneous,
• The importance of ovariohysterectomy (spaying), if your

• Dispose of the syringe in an appropriate manner (sharps/

Giving the injection:

• Using your free hand, pinch up a fold of skin, insert the

• The injection site should be alternated between your

• Pull the needle out being careful to not inject yourself.

• The needle should not be used to inject into a

Using the syringes

• If you do not use the complete contents of the syringe in

What do I do if I miss my pet's insulin dose?

What do I do if I give my pets more than the

What do I do if I give my pets less than the

How do I store vetsulin®?

vetsulin® Injectable Insulin (porcine insulin zinc suspension)

• Carefully remove the cap from the needle.
• Draw air into the syringe to equal the vetsulin® dose.
• If you see large particles floating in the suspension after
required, the product should be gently mixed to maintain
surface of the suspension formed during shaking should
• Shake the vial thoroughly until a homogeneous,
• The importance of ovariohysterectomy (spaying), if your

• Dispose of the syringe in an appropriate manner (sharps/

Giving the injection:

• Using your free hand, pinch up a fold of skin, insert the

• The injection site should be alternated between your

• Pull the needle out being careful to not inject yourself.

• The needle should not be used to inject into a

Using the syringes

• If you do not use the complete contents of the syringe in

What do I do if I miss my pet's insulin dose?

What do I do if I give my pets more than the

What do I do if I give my pets less than the

How do I store vetsulin®?

vetsulin® Injectable Insulin (porcine insulin zinc suspension)

• Carefully remove the cap from the needle.
• Draw air into the syringe to equal the vetsulin® dose.
• If you see large particles floating in the suspension after
required, the product should be gently mixed to maintain
surface of the suspension formed during shaking should
• Shake the vial thoroughly until a homogeneous,
• The importance of ovariohysterectomy (spaying), if your

• Dispose of the syringe in an appropriate manner (sharps/

Giving the injection:

• Using your free hand, pinch up a fold of skin, insert the

• The injection site should be alternated between your

• Pull the needle out being careful to not inject yourself.

• The needle should not be used to inject into a

Using the syringes

• If you do not use the complete contents of the syringe in

What do I do if I miss my pet's insulin dose?

What do I do if I give my pets more than the

What do I do if I give my pets less than the

How do I store vetsulin®?

vetsulin® Injectable Insulin (porcine insulin zinc suspension)

• Carefully remove the cap from the needle.
• Draw air into the syringe to equal the vetsulin® dose.
• If you see large particles floating in the suspension after
required, the product should be gently mixed to maintain
surface of the suspension formed during shaking should
• Shake the vial thoroughly until a homogeneous,
• The importance of ovariohysterectomy (spaying), if your

• Dispose of the syringe in an appropriate manner (sharps/

Giving the injection:

• Using your free hand, pinch up a fold of skin, insert the

• The injection site should be alternated between your

• Pull the needle out being careful to not inject yourself.

• The needle should not be used to inject into a

Using the syringes

• If you do not use the complete contents of the syringe in

What do I do if I miss my pet's insulin dose?

What do I do if I give my pets more than the

What do I do if I give my pets less than the

How do I store vetsulin®?